

K60: unconditional offers

Kings College London University of London's perspective on unconditional offers:

King's College London expects all of our applicants to demonstrate suitable academic attainment in their school-level qualifications (i.e. A level or equivalent) prior to enrolment on an undergraduate programme. We therefore do not make unconditional offers to applicants who have yet to complete their school education at a satisfactory level. We do see a small number of students applying each year who are still of school age, but have already satisfied our entry requirements – for example, by taking a number of suitable qualifications early – and we would issue the student with an unconditional offer in these circumstances. In exceptional circumstances, we may choose to make an unconditional offer to a student who has not yet met our entry requirements, for example, if severe disruption to their education leads us to believe their formal qualifications would not reflect their true potential, and we feel able to assess their academic potential through other means.

Definitions of offer types:

Unconditional offer

This is an offer made by a provider where they are satisfied that an individual has demonstrated sufficient attainment and potential to succeed on their chosen programme. Based on the offer status at the 30 June application deadline.

Conditional unconditional offer

An offer made by a provider which was originally conditional, but becomes unconditional if the applicant selects that offer as their firm (first) choice. By definition, conditional unconditional offers that are selected as a firm choice by the applicant become unconditional and are also included in the unconditional offers group (see above).

Offer with an unconditional component

All offers showing as having an element of unconditional offer-making, that is, unconditional offers plus conditional unconditional offers that have not been selected as firm (and hence remain conditional unconditional).

All offers

All offers made by the provider, subject to the coverage of this report. This includes conditional as well as unconditional offers to 18-year-old main scheme applicants domiciled in England, Northern Ireland, and Wales.

Technical note:

The coverage of this report is limited to offers made by 30 June, to 18-year-old main scheme applicants domiciled in England, Northern Ireland, and Wales. This is because these applicants are least likely to apply already having achieved a full set of qualifications typically required for undergraduate higher education.
