

1. Before you start your search...

Think about the qualifications and experience you need to already have to secure a place on a teacher training programme.

- Check the entry requirements – you'll have to meet these to apply. Remember, you can speak to your chosen schools and teacher training providers to find out more information before applying.
- Decide which age group and subject you would like to teach.
- Look into the different routes – we process applications for four different routes into teaching. Take time to research which route would suit you. We've developed a quiz to help you think through the differences between the types of training. Once you've answered the questions it'll match your preferences to routes to consider.

2. Once you're ready to start searching...

Use our search tool to begin your search for training programmes.

If you want to search by the route into teaching

Use the 'all training programme types' filter and select one of the following options:

- Higher Education programme
- SCITT programme
- School Direct training programme
- School Direct training programme (salaried)

School Direct training programmes, including those run by SCITTs, are listed under 'School Direct training programme' or 'School Direct training programme (salaried)'. SCITT training programmes will be under the name of the SCITT.

If you want to search for a specific provider

If you have a specific school or provider in mind and you know that's where you want to apply, simply search for them by name and don't apply any other filters. If they don't appear it may be because they are not recruiting at the moment – schools and providers can open and close programmes throughout the cycle.

To see the full list of programmes (whether or not they have vacancies) use the 'all training programmes, with or without vacancies filter'.

If you want to search by the subject (e.g. Languages and Design and Technology) or age group you want to teach

Use the 'all age ranges' and 'all subjects' filters to refine your search.

If you want to apply to teach languages there are a number of ways to search as they're listed in different ways. You can:

- search by the specific language (for example Chinese, French, German)
- search by the broader 'language' options – there are four to choose from 'Languages', 'Languages (African)', 'Languages (Asian)' and 'Languages (European)'

The category the programmes are listed under will depend on how the provider has set it up. Therefore, if you want to study French we would suggest doing three searches using 'French', 'Languages' and 'Languages (European)' so you don't miss any.

If you want to make sure you'll get a specific qualification

Use the 'all outcomes' filter. All the training programmes offered through UCAS Teacher Training result in at least a recommendation for Qualified Teacher Status or an equivalent. A PGCE is available through most school-led and all university-led training courses. Find out more about the awards.
